Ava Gardner and Richard Burton in a scene from "THE NIGHT OF THE IGUANA."

Richard Burton, Ava Gardner, Deborah Kerr and Speer Lyon star in "THE NIGHT OF THE IGUANA," screen version of the Tennessee Williams drama, which was voted the best play of the 1961-62 season by the New York drama critics. Filmed in Mexico, the picture, presented by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and Seven Arts, was produced by Ray Stark and directed by John Huston. The story centers on four persons imprisoned by their own loneliness who are thrown together in a remote and run-down hotel on the west coast of Mexico.
