Bettina Arnold

Professor, Department of Anthropology
University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee
Milwaukee, WI 53211
(414) 229-4583; barnold@uwm.edu
Web site: <http://www.uwm.edu/~barnold/>

Degrees:

1991 Ph.D. Harvard University (Anthropology)
1986 M.A. Harvard University (Anthropology)
1983 B.A. (magna cum laude) Yale University (Archaeology)

Ph.D. dissertation title:

The Material Culture of Social Structure: Rank and Status in Early Iron Age Europe (Committee: Peter S. Wells, K.C. Chang, C.C. Lamberg-Karlovsky)

Research Interests:

European prehistory with an emphasis on the pre-Roman Iron Age. My work has been directed toward the following specific research topics: the archaeological interpretation and analysis of complex societies, particularly as reflected in mortuary contexts; material culture as a symbolic system and a means of communicating social relationships; the role of alcohol and its consumption in establishing and maintaining social systems in prehistoric and historic societies; the archaeological interpretation of prehistoric gender configurations; and the socio-political history of archaeology, particularly its role in identity construction in 19th and 20th century nationalist and ethnic movements in Europe and the United States.

Positions Held:

Professor, Department of Anthropology, University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee (2009-present)
Adjunct Curator, Milwaukee Public Museum (2010-present)
Associate Professor, Department of Anthropology, University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee (2000-2009)
Assistant Professor, Department of Anthropology, University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee (1996 - 2000)
Lecturer, Department of Anthropology, University of Minnesota (September 1992 - 1996)
Lecturer, Minneapolis Community College (Winter/Spring Quarter 1993; Spring Quarter 1991)
Visiting Assistant Professor of Anthropology, Department of Sociology and Anthropology, Moorhead State University (September 1991 - July 1992)
